VETERAN AMERICAN TROOPS SMASH GERMAN RESISTANCE TO CAPTURE LIVORNO, LARGE PORT IN ITALY

With Polish Troops in Firm Possession of Ancona, the Allies Gravely Threaten the Pisa-Rimini "Gothic Line," Believed To Be Last Formidable Barrier Before Nazis' Last Ditch Italian Defenses in The Po River Valley.

ROME, July 19.—(INS)—Veteran American troops of Lieut. General Mark Wayne Clark's Fifth Army today smashed ferocious German resistance to capture the City of Livorno (Leghorn), the third greatest port in Italy which lies only 250 miles southwest of the Brenner Pass—southern gateway to Nazi Germany.

With the Polish troops of the Eighth Army in firm possession of Ancona, the Allies now gravely threaten the Pisa-Rimini "Gothic Line," believed to be the last formidable barrier before the Nazis, last ditch Italian defenses in the Po River Valley.

Livorno fell in bitter fighting after U. S. forces crossed the Arno River at Pontedera and then swung sharply to the west, seizing the last important high ground before the port and then crashing into its home defenses.

According to preliminary reports, the Germans wrought great destruction upon the harbor of Livorno but the port is expected to be put back into operation for speedy unloading of Allied supplies and reinforcements.

MORRISVILLE HAS THE WEED PROBLEM

Police Instructed To Notify Property Owners That Growth Must Be Cut

PAVING WORK DONE

MORRISVILLE, July 19.—Several complaints regarding residents who have failed to cut the weeds on their properties and along the sidewalks, have been filed and police have been instructed to notify residents that the work must be done.

Morrisville Common Council recently heard a report from Councilman Edwin Greenlee, chairman of the street committee, that 50 percent of the Summer road conditioning is already done. Council authorized the committee to look into the matter of cost and work for the paving of both sides of the street on South Pennsylvania avenue below the cemetery to the borough line.

Williamson Park will be cleaned and the grass cut as public property of the borough.

Councilman John Bleasdale, of the Fourth Ward, reported on the convention of boroughs which was recently held in Philadelphia. At that time Bleasdale was appointed to a committee of three to investigate the possibility of granting a 5 percent rebate on borough taxes in the State. Council went on record to oppose the rebate.

WIDE SPLIT REPORTED IN DEMOCRATIC DELEGATION FROM PENNSYLVANIA OVER THE VICE-PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION

By Watson Fenimore

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO, July 19.—(INS)—A wide split in the Pennsylvania Democratic Convention delegation on the Vice-Presidential issue stood revealed today after anti-Wallace forces refused to be committed in caucus to support of Harry Wallace for renomination.

A 41-21 vote in favor of the Vice-President resulted at the meeting after the Wallace question unexpectedly was forced before the delegates by CIO president, Philip Murray, delegate-at-large from Allegheny County.

U. S. Sen. Joseph F. Guffey, ardent Wallace advocate, refused, however, to accept the county as finally indicative of Wallace strength in the Keystone State contingent.

Guffey declared that the 13 delegates who did not vote on Wallace at the caucus—and whose votes were included in the 21 "against" the Iowan-vote for the Vice-President on the convention floor.

He estimated that Wallace eventually would get 58 or sixty of Pennsylvania convention ballots despite the strong sentiment against him at the caucus.

Further action on Wallace by Pennsylvania was ruled out until Vice Presidential nominations have been made, however, by a resolution adopted by the delegates to reserve further expressions of sentiment on the question until that time.

State Democratic Chairman David L. Lawrence was about to bang his gavel signaling the end of a peaceful, cut-and-dried organizational caucus when Murray rose and precipitated the bitter fight over Wallace.

Declaring that Wallace had the unqualified endorsement of the CIO and would bring the greatest possible

$35,000 BLAZE RAGES THROUGH THREE-STORY BUILDING USED BY SHOE FIRM IN BURLINGTON

BURLINGTON, July 19.—Fire last night raged through a three-story brick building here occupied by the Clover Shoe Company on Library street. The loss to the building and the contents is estimated at $35,000 by Fire Chief Joseph Gilbert. There is some insurance.

The first alarm was received at 7:27 p. m. and the fire was out at 11:04 p. m. Firemen from Burlington Township were called into the city to "stand by" in the city fire stations as all of the city companies were on duty at the fire.

While Chief Gilbert made a preliminary inspection he could not state the cause of the blaze. He is of the opinion that it started at a spot in the plant where cement is used to fasten soles on shoes.

Eight firemen were injured by receiving cuts and bruises on the hands and heads and other parts of the body due mainly to broken glass from windows which were broken by the heat.

The fire was discovered by a pedestrian who noticed smoke curling out from under the eaves. The pedestrian ran a block to the Young America Fire Co. on nearby Broad street, and sounded an alarm.

City Fire Chief Joseph Gilbert, arriving on the scene with the first companies, immediately ordered a general alarm. He said the work of firemen in bringing the flames under control was hampered by the dense smoke caused by burning leather and other products used in the manufacture of women's sport shoes.

Louis Salerno, president of the firm, said the last of the firm's 60 employees had left the building by 11 p. m. He said a large amount of finished stock was being held for customers whose sales have been curtailed by the shoe rationing program.

The building, owned by the estate of the late James H. Birch, has been occupied by the shoe firm for the past 10 years. Prior to the advent of the automobile, the late Mr. Birch was famed for the manufacture of fancy coaches and wagons. His trade also included the manufacture of jinrikishas for wealthy Orientals.

CO. SEAT AWAITS COURT DECISION IN TAX CASE

Suit to Decide Who Shall Collect Borough Taxes Is Heard

2 COLLECTORS NOW

One Man Collects School and Another Collects Borough Taxes

DOYLESTOWN, July 19.—Doylestown citizens are awaiting the decision of Harold G. Knight, of the Montgomery county courts, who specially presided at a hearing here yesterday in which citizens remonstrated against an attempt to have the Borough of Doylestown operate under the General Act of 1927 so far as collection of borough tax is concerned.

At the present time, Tax Collector Robert W. Robinson collects all but the borough taxes. These are collected, under an old act of 1862, pertaining to Doylestown alone, by the Borough Treasurer at the Borough office.

A petition of some 200 signers asked that the system be changed to a one-man collection. Another couple of hundred citizens remonstrated, and the case was heard in court before a neutral judge.

Opponents of the one-man system produced evidence to show that the borough is saving from $900 to $1,000 a year as a result of having the Borough Treasurer collect the borough tax, and that the present system is a privilege enjoyed by the tax-payers of Doylestown.

NAZI PRISONERS' STRIKE

It couldn't happen in Nazi Germany, but it has happened here. The Army has announced that when 70 German war prisoners went on strike at Utica, New York, they were given the privilege of five minutes' consultation among themselves and then—when they unanimously refused to alter their stand—they were sentenced to confinement up to 30 days with a bread and water diet for 14 days. They were not shot down for their Nazi insubordination, as they would have been had they been Allied prisoners of the Axis.

These 70 Nazi prisoners, sheltered in former factory buildings, took offense when they were not allowed to remain outside in a stockade until after dark. They had been brought to Utica to work in pea fields. They demanded to remain outside until 10 p. m., when ordered in at 9:30 p. m., and refused on the following day to board buses for the fields. Col. John F. Daye, commander of District 3, Second Service Command, explained that he ordered the disciplinary measure when they all refused to reconsider their attitude.

Where these German prisoners came from in the European battle zone, what grim encounters they may have had with tank warfare in Russia or what intense fighting they may have experienced against the Allies in Italy or France, is not unfolded. It might be thought that to be privileged to come to America to work in a peaceful countryside—far from the maddening Nazi crowd's ignoble strife—would have seemed a heavenly release for them, accepted without any qualification.

Anyhow, the German mind is so accustomed to discipline that it is hard to understand why it should have backfired over a trifle in this instance—particularly in view of how summarily these Nazis themselves would have dealt with Allied prisoners in any case of insubordination.

The obtuseness of Nazi prisoners in this country is now an old story. They cannot be persuaded to believe—or believe in—anything contrary to their rigorously impressed opinions. The alternative in this case was fairly mild compulsion. Perhaps in that very mildness they may yet be moved to learn something about the civilized world they have sworn to destroy. But odds are against it.

DRAKE'S PRAYER

In a broadcast to his forces in Normandy, General Montgomery said:

"I cannot do better than conclude this message by quoting a favorite prayer of Sir Francis Drake: 'O Lord God, when Thou givest to Thy servants to endeavor or any great matter, grant us also to know that it is not the beginning but the continuing of the same until it be thoroughly finished which yieldeth the true glory.'"

"Let us fight on to victory in the spirit of that prayer."

Exultant civilians, as well as soldiers, may well memorize Drake's prayer.

Doylestown Awaits Court Decision in Tax Case

Robinson to collect all taxes, testified that the community would benefit in the long run and that it would be more convenient. They expressed the opinion that Doylestown should have the same system that 97 per cent of the other boroughs of the state use.

DOYLESTOWN, July 19.—With President Judge Harold G. Knight, of the Montgomery County Courts on the bench, a hearing started Monday morning in the much-discussed Doylestown tax collector case.

One group of citizens ask that the borough tax collector collect all taxes—including the borough taxes—and follow General Act of 1927.

The other group contends that the present system should continue, with borough tax collected by the borough treasurer.

School Director Walter M. Carwithen also favored Doylestown changing to the Act of 1927, have one tax collector, and any special act under which the borough now operates—should be annulled.

"If it's absolutely possible for the borough to save $1,000 a year under the present system, I'd say the system is okay, otherwise no," the witness added. "I'd like to know how many remissions of taxes took place during the last five years."

Charles E. Row, of East Ashland street, a clerk in the County Commissioners' Office, said he believed the present should be annulled.

"I find in our office where we collect delinquent taxes, that most people complain where there are two tax collectors. I believe it is much more convenient with one collector. The convenience would be worth any extra cost, I feel."

George McLaughlin, of West

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Stake and children, Ruth, Charlotte and Wayne, Jr., are spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnson, Columbus, N. J.

Judge Knight announced that he would limit each side to six witnesses.

A Harry Clayton, State Workmen's Compensation Referee, of West Court street, testified that in his opinion all taxes, including borough taxes, should be collected by the same collector, elected for that purpose, and that the General Borough Act of 1927 should be followed in governing all affairs of the borough. The witness said that he believed it would be more convenient to have all taxes collected by the same person.

"Would you favor a change if you knew that the taxpayers save from $900 to $1000 a year under the present system?" Attorney Webster Achey, for the opponents of the plan, testified.

"I would have to look over and study the figures myself," Mr. Clayton answered.

Attorney Achey informed Mr. Clayton that during the past five years, Doylestown has been saved $4889.80 under the present system.

School Director Frank Mitchell, called by Attorney John L. DuBois, for Tax Collector Robert Robinson's side of the case, expressed the same opinion as the previous witnesses. He expressed the opinion that there would be less delinquent taxes under the one-collector system.

E. Newlin Hellyer, of South Main street, a corporation tax examiner for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, was called by Attorney DuBois.

"I think we should have one tax collector," Hellyer testified. "I believe that Doylestown borough would save money under the Borough Act of 1927, with one collector, and I believe it's up to Council to check up and put in the system that is used in practically every borough in the State."

The majority of members of Borough Council were in court. So was Borough Treasurer Thomas Diver, and Horace M. Mann, a former borough treasurer, all of whom are

NORTH TO DANGER by TOM GILL

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

Slowly Colin turned. They were alone. It was a moment that had to be faced; a moment made inevitable by all that had happened before, yet it took more courage than he thought to meet her eyes.

Irina spoke first. "You meant that about going away?"

"Don't you think I'd better?"

"But why?"

"You know the answer."

"Colin, we kissed—that's all. Is it so very much?"

"Not with anyone else—but you happen to be Rodney Selkirk's future wife."

"She may have wined. 'You can always blame it on the woman. Most men would.'"

"I'm not thinking of blame. I'm thinking of tomorrow and the days after. I'm thinking of the man who happens to be in love with you."

He gathered up her clothes and laid them on the bed. "These are dry now, I'll go out and start the motor."

Her two hands closed about his arm. "Colin, don't make me sorry about that kiss."

"Aren't you?"

She threw back her head, and her smoky eyes caressed him. "I'm glad."

The low, fervent voice raised a faint rustling of echoes, her hands were on his wrist, and again he felt the spell of her. He took a quick step back. "We'd better go now, while there's time. I'll wait for you down by the lake."

But the cold motor gave him trouble; his fingers were unsteady, his clumsy, and Irina had saved herself in the canoe before he was able to start. She did not speak as he wrapped the blanket about her, then, lowering his head before the storm, turned toward the center of the lake. The wind was biting cold, the hail stinging their faces, and seated at the tiller Colin steered for Leamouth, glad that they could not talk, welcoming the savage lash of the storm.

Only once Irina spoke, just before they reached the inn. "Colin," she asked, "you won't say anything about this to Rodney?"

"Suppose Dove talks?"

"I don't think he will."

Colin lifted her to the dock and shoved the canoe out into the stream. But once, through driving hail, he looked back to see her standing there, gaining after him—a lonely, solitary figure holding a cold, wintry pup in her arms.

Throttle wide open, he steered straight into the storm, but his thoughts, racing faster than the motor, took him back to that cabin by the lake shore, and once more he was kneeling, looking up into the shadowy triangle of a woman's face; once more the soft, eager lips swayed toward him, and small white hands pressed his neck. She was very lovely; she had saved him down in Win-nipeg, and she had reached out to him from her loneliness.

But Rodney Selkirk loved her. Colin pulled his coat tighter. Selkirk loved her, and there was work ahead—work that called for cold reason and for steadfast, undistracted vigilance; there could be no place for encircling arms or soft lips. His job was the man hunt.

Shielding his eyes, he peered across the waters; then suddenly brought the canoe about in a tight arc and steered toward the Indian school. Dove's absence might provide a long-awaited chance to talk with Dr. Benedict—and anything was better than being alone with his own unprofitable reveries.

Again he thought of Selkirk, and drew a deep, sharp breath. Well, it was done and could not be undone. No amount of regret could alter the past. In this life you had to pick yourself up and start again. But thinking alone was certain—there must be no more trips with Irina.

The hail had changed to driving snow when Colin tied his canoe to the dock and went directly to Benedict's little office in the Hall.

He found the doctor at his desk, bending over a paper covered with figures. As he entered, Benedict threw down his pencil with a grunt of exasperation.

"Money," he waved Colin to a chair. "Blair says I'm a child in arms when it comes to money. I don't ever seem able to get along with it or without it. Then all at once you need some, and you haven't got it."

Colin remembered how heedless this big physician had always been of his own worldly gain; the story was current in Leamouth that whenever Benedict visited some ailing Cree family he not only paid for the prescription he gave, but sent them a load of provisions.

"What's the crisis now, Doctor?" Colin asked.

"I want a new type of compound microscope. I can save human lives with it by making a more prompt diagnosis, but Dove can't get it—he's spent his allotment—so I'm trying to find out if I'm solvent."

He frowned at the figures, like a schoolboy at some difficult problem in mathematics. "I've never thought much about money, Colin. Maybe that was a mistake. It gets more important as you get older. Not for me—I'm too old to matter—but for Blair. I've got her to think about."

"Blair will always take care of herself."

"How? There isn't much for a girl to do up here, you know. When the war's over, all the pilot jobs will go back to men. I've got to leave her a little something when I go, and I'm not doing it. It's not fair."

"I think you're wrong to worry about Blair."

"Well, I do worry."

"About Blair, or—Colin hesitated—or something else?"

Sharply Benedict turned. "What else? What else is there?"

"I don't know. But I do know this; you've changed since I last saw you, and I believe it makes Blair much more unhappy than any prospects of poverty."

The physician's laugh boomed out, but to Colin the laugh sounded strained. "That's all nonsense! What could I be worrying about?"

"Dove."

Fear sprang to Benedict's eyes, but reluctantly Colin went on. "I've only way you could hurt Blair."

Benedict was on his feet. Raising a warning hand for silence, he seemed to be listening, then he half whispered, "Let's go to my cabin. We can talk here."

"Dove is away."

"I know. But that's not all. Come."

Puzzled, Colin followed the doctor across the clearing, and inside the cabin the two men sat down before the stove.

Benedict pushed the tobacco toward Colin. "What do you know about Dove?" His voice was not quite steady.

For a moment Colin did not answer, while he asked himself how far Benedict could be trusted. It was not impossible that the doctor might be wholeheartedly in league with Dove and Colin would endanger everything by talking too soon. He thought of Blair, and decided to take the chance.

"Not quite nothing. The last word hasn't been spoken."

That look of fear had returned to Benedict's eyes; he laid a hand on the other's arm.

"Careful, Colin. Don't ask me why, but just be careful. Let Dove alone. And if you're trying to help me, I tell you solemnly you can't. You can only hurt yourself. If Dove ever—"

Benedict stopped. Feet were crunching on the hail-strewn path, and Blair entered, cheeks glowing and dark hair powdered with snow.

At sight of Rae her face lighted. "Been thinking about you?" She took off her mackinaw and added, "Freeze-up is coming at last."

But when Benedict had left them, she looked after her father's huge, half-bent figure going across the clearing, and her eyes were grave. She turned to Colin.

"For three nights he's been over in the Hall with Dove, and each night I've seen lights passing through the attic. Father says they're checking over equipment for the trapping season, but I know they've been up in that room. Each morning there's the stain of some chemical on Father's fingers, and an odor on his clothes—I've smelled it somewhere before, but can't remember where."

FLEETWINGS PULLS A SURPRISE AND DEFEATS LEADERS

Heisler Had Nine Strikeouts and Allows Only Four Scattered Hits

With "Lonnie" Heisler pitching superb ball, the Fleetwings team pulled a surprise in the Trenton Industrial League by whipping the league-leading Prison Officers, 4-2, last evening on Wetzel's field, Trenton.

Heisler allowed but four scattered hits. He had nine strikeouts to his credit and found easy marks in Jones and Kish. He fanned the former three out of three and Kish, three out of four. Heisler was moved in the eighth when Lukens made a beautiful running catch of Coffey's bid for a hit. Two runners were on base at the time.

The hitting of Bert Barbetta and Sammy Walker aided in the Fleetwings' triumph. In the first, Barbetta tripled and Walker followed him with a home run. In the eighth, Leone doubled and Barbetta singled. An error by the second baseman enabled Leone to score and Walker drove Barbetta home with his second hit.

Two fielder's choices gave the Trenton team their tallies. In the first, Tanzone walked and advanced to third on Ott's single to score on a fielder's choice while in the ninth, Ott was passed and advanced to third when Heisler threw wild trying to pick him off the bag. He also scored when Walker was throwing out Coffey.

SEVEN RUNS IN SIXTH WINS FOR VOLTZ IX

Seven runs in the sixth inning gave the Voltz-Texaco a 10-8 victory over the Diamond team last evening on the Maple Beach diamond. It was the first defeat of the second half for the Mill streeters, and enabled the Texaco boys to move into a triple deadlock for first place with Diamond and Badenhausen.

The Diamond boys outlit the first half champs, 12-7, and it was a close tilt until both teams unleashed their batting power in the sixth when 12 runs crossed the plate.

With the exception of Mitchell, each of the Diamond players had at least one hit with Mandio, Papatera, DeRisi, and Keegan getting two each. "Bill" Leigh had two out of three for the winners while Downsap, the league's leading batsman had a single in one official trip to the plate.

BADENHAUSEN NINE CRUSHES ALCOA IN A LEAGUE CONTEST

Winners Make 17 of The 31 Hits Made During The Game

FINAL SCORE 16 TO 7

Alcoa Started Game With A Bang But Could Not Keep Up The Pace

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, July 19 — In a hitting duel on the Bensalem high school field, the Badenhausen team crushed the Alcoa nine, of Burlington, 16-7, in a Bristol Suburban League game.

A total of thirty-one hits were made in the contest with the winners having seventeen. Eleven of the hits were for extra bases, including three home runs and a trio of triples.

Badenhausen had its best frame in the fifth when Cobleigh singled, and Paul homered. Hibbs went out but Bowman singled and Stackhouse hit a four-bagger. Samsel followed with a triple and scored on an error.

The visiting Alcoa team started out with a bang when Benny Woods opened the game with a home run and Freddie Hibbs followed with a triple and successive singles were bunched by Angelo, Tolson and Schele. And after Daniels went out, Barthmer also hit safely, for a four-run total.

Paul Dean went the route for the Baddies while Alcoa used J. Woods, Woodington, and Schele on the mound. Trapp and Cobleigh fanned their batting averages for the winners while Angelo and P. Hibbs did the same for the Alcoa nine.

CHORE BOY

Johnny's earned a little time out for rest . . . for he's one of Uncle Sam's most important workers. Like other farm boys of today he's doing a man's job helping his Dad at home . . . helping to meet the greatest demands in history for food.

On Supplee farms, the Johnnies, and Jims and Juniors have joined their fathers to outwit the wartime shortages of "hired" labor . . . boys are working long and hard, side by side with the men to produce the pure, fresh, carefully guarded milk for which Supplee is famous . . . enough of it—

1. To take care of the increased needs of your community.

2. To provide refreshing nourishment to the men in nearby Navy and Coast Guard stations, local hospitals and Army centers.

3. To be processed into proper forms for shipment abroad to help nourish our armies, our fighting Allies, and the friends we liberate.

Now, even though the peak production is past, you can still get as much fine, rich Supplee Milk (and, of course, that includes extra nourishing Sealtest Homogenized Vitamin D Milk) as you need from your Supplee milk man or woman, or at your neighborhood store. As Allied forces advance, demands for milk for overseas may diminish home-front supplies . . . if so, you can continue to depend on Supplee to keep you informed, and to bring you your full share of this war-precious food.

VETERAN AMERICAN TROOPS SMASH GERMAN RESISTANCE TO CAPTURE LIVORNO, LARGE PORT IN ITALY

With Polish Troops in Firm Possession of Ancona, the Allies Gravely Threaten the Pisa-Rimini "Gothic Line," Believed To Be Last Formidable Barrier Before Nazis' Last Ditch Italian Defenses in the Po River Valley.

ROME, July 19.—(INS)—Veteran American troops of Lieut. General Mark Wayne Clark's Fifth Army today smashed ferocious German resistance to capture the City of Livorno (Leghorn), the third greatest port in Italy which lies only 250 miles southwest of the Brenner Pass—southern gateway to Nazi Germany.

With the Polish troops of the Eighth Army in firm possession of Ancona, the Allies now gravely threaten the Pisa-Rimini "Gothic Line," believed to be the last formidable barrier before the Nazis, last ditch Italian defenses in the Po River Valley.

Livorno fell in bitter fighting after U. S. forces crossed the Arno River at Pontedera and then swung sharply to the west, seizing the last important high ground before the port and then crashing into its home defenses.

According to preliminary reports, the Germans wrought great destruction upon the harbor of Livorno but the port is expected to be put back into operation for speedy unloading of Allied supplies and reinforcements.

PAVING WORK DONE

MORRISVILLE, July 19.—Several complaints regarding residents who have failed to cut the weeds on their properties and along the sidewalks, have been filed and police have been instructed to notify residents that the work must be done.

Morrisville Common Council recently heard a report from Councilman Edwin Greenlee, chairman of the street committee, that 50 percent of the Summer road conditioning is already done. Council authorized the committee to look into the matter of cost and work for the paving of both sides of the street on South Pennsylvania avenue below the cemetery to the borough line.

Williamson Park will be cleaned and the grass cut as public property of the borough.

Councilman John Bleasdale, of the Fourth Ward, reported on the convention of boroughs which was recently held in Philadelphia. At that time Bleasdale was appointed to a committee of three to investigate the possibility of granting a 5 percent rebate on borough taxes in the State. Council went on record to oppose the rebate.

WIDE SPLIT REPORTED IN DEMOCRATIC DELEGATION FROM PENNSYLVANIA OVER THE VICE-PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION

By Watson Fenimore

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO, July 19.—(INS)—A wide split in the Pennsylvania Democratic Convention delegation on the Vice-Presidential issue stood revealed today after anti-Wallace forces refused to be committed in caucus to support of Harry Wallace for renomination.

A 41-21 vote in favor of the Vice-President resulted at the meeting after the Wallace question unexpectedly was forced before the delegates by CIO president, Philip Murray, delegate-at-large from Allegheny County.

U. S. Sen. Joseph F. Guffey, ardent Wallace advocate, refused, however, to accept the county as finally indicative of Wallace strength in the Keystone State contingent.

Guffey declared that the 13 delegates who did not vote on Wallace at the caucus—and whose votes were included in the 21 "against" the Iowa vote for the Vice-President on the convention floor. He estimated that Wallace eventually would get 58 or sixty of Pennsylvania convention ballots despite the strong sentiment against him at the caucus.

Further action on Wallace by Pennsylvania was ruled out until Vice-Presidential nominations have been made, however, by a resolution adopted by the delegates to reserve further expressions of sentiment on the question until that time.

State Democratic Chairman David L. Lawrence was about to bang his gavel signaling the end of a peaceful, cut-and-dried organizational caucus when Murray rose and precipitated the bitter fight over Wallace.

Declaring that Wallace had the unqualified endorsement of the CIO and would bring the greatest possible benefit to the State, he

$35,000 BLAZE RAGES THROUGH THREE-STORY BUILDING USED BY SHOE FIRM IN BURLINGTON

BURLINGTON, July 19.—Fire last night raged through a three-story brick building here occupied by the Clover Shoe Company on Library street. The loss to the building and the contents is estimated at $35,000 by Fire Chief Joseph Gilbert. There is some insurance.

The first alarm was received at 7.27 p. m., and the fire was out at 11.04 p. m. Firemen from Burlington Township were called into the city to "stand by" in the city fire stations as all of the city companies were on duty at the fire.

While Chief Gilbert made a preliminary inspection he could not state the cause of the blaze. He is of the opinion that it started at a spot in the plant where cement is used to fasten soles on shoes.

Eight firemen were injured by receiving cuts and bruises on the hands and heads and other parts of the body due mainly to broken glass from windows which were broken by the heat.

The fire was discovered by a pedestrian who noticed smoke curling out from under the eaves. The pedestrian ran a block to the Young America Fire Co. on nearby Broad street, and sounded an alarm.

City Fire Chief Joseph Gilbert, arriving on the scene with the first companies, immediately ordered a general alarm. He said the work of firemen in bringing the flames under control was hampered by the dense smoke caused by burning leather and other products used in the manufacture of women's sport shoes.

Louis Salerno, president of the firm, said the last of the firm's 60 employees had left the building by 3 p. m. He said a large amount of finished stock was being held for customers whose sales have been curtailed by the shoe rationing program.

The building, owned by the estate of the late James H. Birch, has been occupied by the shoe firm for the past 10 years. Prior to the advent of the automobile, the late Mr. Birch was famed for the manufacture of fancy coaches and wagons. This trade also included the manufacture of jinrikishas for wealthy Orientals.

NAZI PRISONERS' STRIKE

It couldn't happen in Nazi Germany, but it has happened here. The Army has announced that when 70 German war prisoners went on strike at Utica, New York, they were given the privilege of five minutes' consultation among themselves and then—when they unanimously refused to alter their stand—they were sentenced to confinement up to 30 days with a bread and water diet for 14 days. They were not shot down for their Nazi insubordination, as they would have been had they been Allied prisoners of the Axis.

These 70 Nazi prisoners, sheltered in former factory buildings, took offense when they were not allowed to remain outside in a stockade until after dark. They had been brought to Utica to work in pea fields. They demanded to remain outside until 10 p. m., when ordered in at 9.30 p. m., and refused on the following day to board buses for the fields. Col. John F. Daye, commander of District 3, Second Service Command, explained that he ordered the disciplinary measure when they all refused to reconsider their attitude.

Where these German prisoners came from in the European battle zone, what grim encounters they may have had with tank warfare in Russia or what intense fighting they may have experienced against the Allies in Italy or France, is not unfolded. It might be thought that to be privileged to come to America to work in a peaceful countryside—far from the maddening Nazi crowd's ignoble strife—would have seemed a heavenly release for them, accepted without any qualification.

Anyhow, the German mind is so accustomed to discipline that it is hard to understand why it should have bucked over a trifle in this instance—particularly in view of how summarily these Nazis themselves would have dealt with Allied prisoners in any case of insubordination.

The obtuseness of Nazi prisoners in this country is now an old story. They cannot be persuaded to believe—or believe in—anything contrary to their rigorously impressed opinions. The alternative in this case was fairly mild compulsion. Perhaps in that very mildness they may yet be moved to learn something about the civilized world they have sworn to destroy. But odds are against it.

DRAKE'S PRAYER

In a broadcast to his forces in Normandy, General Montgomery said:

"I cannot do better than conclude this message by quoting a favorite prayer of Sir Francis Drake: 'O Lord God, when Thou givest to Thy servants to endeavor any great matter, grant us also to know that it is not the beginning but the continuing of the same until it be thoroughly finished which yieldeth the true glory.'"

"Let us fight on to victory in the spirit of that prayer."

Exultant civilians, as well as soldiers, may well memorize Drake's prayer.

Robinson to collect all taxes, testified that the community would benefit in the long run and that it would be more convenient. They expressed the opinion that Doylestown should have the same system that 97 per cent of the other boroughs of the state use.

DOYLESTOWN, July 19.—With President Judge Harold G. Knight, of the Montgomery County Courts on the bench, a hearing started Monday morning in the much-discussed Doylestown tax collector case.

One group of citizens ask that the borough tax collector collect all taxes—including the borough taxes—and follow General Act of 1927.

The other group contends that the present system should continue, with borough tax collected by the borough treasurer.

School Director Walter M. Carwithen also favored Doylestown changing to the Act of 1927, have one tax collector, and any special act under which the borough now operates—should be annulled.

"If it's absolutely possible for the borough to save $1,000 a year under the present system, I'd say the system is okay, otherwise no," the witness added. "I'd like to know how many remissions of taxes took place during the last five years."

Charles E. Row, of East Ashland street, a clerk in the County Commissioners' Office, said he believed the present act should be annulled. "I find in our office where we collect delinquent taxes, that most people complain where there are two tax collectors. I believe it is more convenient with one collector. The convenience would be worth any extra cost, I feel."

George McLaughlin, of West

Court street, "extensive property owner and taxpayer, also expressed the opinion that the one-tax collector system is best because of the convenience. The collector is elected by the people, and should be allowed to collect all taxes.

Judge Knight announced that he would limit each side to six witnesses.

A Harry Clayton, State Workmen's Compensation Referee, of West Court street, testified that in his opinion all taxes, including borough taxes, should be collected by the same collector, elected for that purpose, and that the General Borough Act of 1927 should be followed in governing all affairs of the borough. The witness said that he believed it would be more convenient to have all taxes collected by the same person.

"Would you favor a change if you knew that the taxpayers save from $900 to $1000 a year under the present system?" Attorney Webster Achey, for the opponents of the plan, testified.

"I would have to look over and study the figures myself," Mr. Clayton answered.

Attorney Achey informed Mr. Clayton that during the past five years, Doylestown has been saved $4889.80 under the present system.

School Director Frank Mitchell, called by Attorney John L. DuBois, for Tax Collector Robert Robinson's side of the case, expressed the same opinion as the previous witnesses. He expressed the opinion that there would be less delinquent taxes under the one-collector system.

E. Newlin Hellyer, of South Main street, a corporation tax examiner for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, was called by Attorney DuBois.

"I think we should have one tax collector," Hellyer testified. "I believe that Doylestown borough would save money under the Borough Act of 1927, with one collector, and I believe it's up to Council to check up and put in the system that is used in practically every borough in the State."

The majority of members of Borough Council were in court. So was Borough Treasurer Thomas Diver, and Horace M. Mann, a former borough treasurer, all of whom are

When this motion subsequently was ruled out of order, Murray explained he wanted only an expression of sentiment from the delegates and did not seek to bind them to the vice-president.

The sentiment of the common people as I understand it runs toward the renomination of both President Roosevelt and Vice-President Wallace," said Murray in making his motion.

"Pennsylvania should assume a direct leadership in placing its endorsement of Henry Wallace for renomination as Vice President of the United States.

(At Maple Beach)

With "Lonnie" Heisler pitching superb ball, the Fleetwings team pulled a surprise in the Trenton Industrial League by whipping the league-leading Prison Officers, 4-2, last evening on Wetzel's field, Trenton.

Heisler allowed but four scattered hits. He had nine strikeouts to his credit and found easy marks in Jones and Kish. He fanned the former three out of three and Kish, three out of four. Heisler was saved in the eighth when Lukens made a beautiful running catch of Coffee's bid for a hit. Two runners were on base at the time.

The hitting of Bert Barbetta and Sammy Walker aided in the Fleetwings' triumph. In the first, Barbetta tripled and Walker followed him with a home run. In the eighth, Leone doubled and Barbetta singled. An error by the second baseman enabled Leone to score and Walker drove Barbetta home with his second hit.

Two fielder's choices gave the Trenton team their tallies. In the first, Tanzone walked and advanced to third on Ott's single to score on a fielder's choice while in the ninth, Ott was passed and advanced to third when Heisler threw wild trying to pick him off the bag. He also scored when Walker was throwing out Coffee.

SEVEN RUNS IN SIXTH WINS FOR VOLTZ IX

Seven runs in the sixth inning gave the Voltz-Texaco a 10-8 victory over the Diamond team last evening on the Maple Beach diamond. It was the first defeat of the second half for the Mill streeters, and enabled the Texaco boys to move into a triple deadlock for first place with Diamond and Badenhausen.

The Diamond boys outlit the first half champs, 12-7, and it was a close tilt until both teams unleashed their batting power in the sixth when 12 runs crossed the plate.

With the exception of Mitchell, each of the Diamond players had at least one hit with Mandio, Pappaterra, DeRisi, and Keegan getting two each. "Bill" Leigh got two out of three for the winners while Downsap, the league's leading batsman had a single in one official trip to the plate.

CHORE BOY

Johnny's earned a little time out for rest . . . for he's one of Uncle Sam's most important workers. Like other farm boys of today he's doing a man's job helping his Dad at home . . . helping to meet the greatest demands in history for food.

On Supplee farms, the Johnnies, and Jims and Juniors have joined their fathers to outwit the wartime shortages of "hired" labor . . . boys are working long and hard, side by side with the men to produce the pure, fresh, carefully guarded milk for which Supplee is famous . . . enough of it—

1. To take care of the increased needs of your community.

2. To provide refreshing nourishment to the men in nearby Navy and Coast Guard stations, local hospitals and Army centers.

3. To be processed into proper forms for shipment abroad to help nourish our armies, our fighting Allies, and the friends we liberate.

Now, even though the peak production is past, you can still get as much fine, rich Supplee Milk (and, of course, that includes extra nourishing Sealtest Homogenized Vitamin D Milk) as you need from your Supplee milk man or woman, or at your neighborhood store. As Allied forces advance, demands for milk for overseas may diminish home-front supplies . . . if so, you can continue to depend on Supplee to keep you informed, and to bring you your full share of this war-precious food.
